

Abstract

The present invention relates to a driver information system. Such a driver information system comprises an operating device 10 having at least two operational control units 20 and a holding unit 12 for the operational control units 20. A control device 62 for validating control signals delivered by the operational control units 20 is also provided, wherein said operational control units 20 are freely arrangeable with respect to the holding device 12.